

Atlas Excellence

Community standards, visits and follow-up

A guide for Executive Directors, Regionals and Administrators

What this app is for

Atlas Excellence keeps one record of how each community is doing, and one place to work through what a visit finds.

A regional walks a community and marks each standard Pass or Fail. What they find becomes that community's score. The Executive Director then reports what has been put right, with a photo, and a regional confirms it. Only then does the score move.

That last part is the whole design. A community can always say what it has done, and can never mark its own work as finished. It is what makes the number on the dashboard worth something.

The two scores

Every community shows two numbers, and they mean different things.

	What it is	When it changes
Current score	Where the community stands today, counting fixes a regional has verified.	Goes up as fixes are confirmed. You do not wait for the next visit.
Visit score	What the visit found on the day. A permanent record.	Never. It stays as it was so past visits stay comparable.

Only the most recent visit counts toward the score. An older visit does not drag the number down forever, and a community cannot improve its standing by being visited more often.

A community never inspects itself. The score comes from the latest visit, so a self-run walkthrough would quietly replace what the regional found — open items and all.

Signing in

The app runs in a web browser. There is nothing to install. It works on a phone, a tablet and a computer, and the layout adapts to each.

- 1 Open the address you were sent and enter your username and password.
- 2 The first time, you will be asked to set a password of your own.
- 3 If you forget it, use "Forgot password" on the sign-in screen. A reset arrives by email.

Put it on your home screen

On a phone it is worth adding to the home screen, so it opens like an app instead of a bookmark:

- iPhone: open it in Safari, tap Share, then "Add to Home Screen".
- Android: open it in Chrome, tap the menu, then "Install app".

If a message from the app does not arrive, look in Junk or Spam first and mark it as safe. That is where they land until your mail system has seen a few of them.

Who can do what

What you see depends on your role. Nobody is shown a button that would be refused.

	Executive Director	Regional / Corporate	Administrator
Run a visit	No	Yes	No
Comment on a finding	Yes	Yes	Yes
Mark a finding as addressed	No	Yes	Yes
See other communities	No	Their region	All
Manage people and standards	No	No	Yes

A regional covers the communities of their region. A Corporate member covers the whole company. An Executive Director sees their own community, and can cover a second one when standing in for a neighbour — without a second login.

Administrators do not run visits. The role exists to manage the system, not to inspect. If you need to do both, an administrator can set you up as a Corporate member with administrator privileges.

Your dashboard

The dashboard opens with Needs you — the short list of things waiting on you specifically. Everything below it is context.

If you are a regional

- Fixes waiting on your confirmation. A community has reported these as done. Their score does not move until you agree.
- Due for a visit. Communities past the visit target, and any that have never been visited.
- Open with no follow-up. Findings nobody has said anything about since the visit.

If you are an Executive Director

- Needs an update from you. Failed standards you have not yet responded to.
- With your regional. What you have reported and are waiting on someone to confirm.

Click any line to go straight to it. When there is nothing pending, the panel is not there at all.

The rest of the dashboard

- Average score, communities visited this month, open action items.
- Performance by region — click a region to drill into its communities.
- The standards that fail most often across the company.
- Recent activity, and a calendar of what is coming up.

Press / from anywhere to search communities, people and past visits. On a phone, use the search button in the header.

Running a visit

For regionals and Corporate members.

- 1 Tap + in the bottom bar on a phone, or "Start New Visit".
- 2 Choose the type of review. A review with no standards behind it is greyed out — it would only give you an empty form.
- 3 Choose the community.
- 4 Work through each standard, marking Pass or Fail.
- 5 Add a photo where it helps. A photo is worth more than a sentence.
- 6 Submit.

A Fail needs a comment

The app will not accept a Fail without a note saying what you found. Whoever fixes it needs to know where to start, and "Fail" on its own tells them nothing. If you try to submit without one, the app jumps to the item.

Sending a finding to a team

A finding can be directed to Clinical, Operations or Sales. That team is emailed directly, without waiting for anyone to pass it along.

Action items

Anything that needs attention but is not one of the standards goes under Additional action items. These are tasks, and they never affect the score.

You can stop and come back

The form saves itself on your device as you go, photos included. Lose signal, take a call, walk out to the car — when you come back to that community you will be offered the unfinished visit. Nothing is sent until you press Submit.

A saved visit is kept on that device for seven days. It never leaves the phone until you submit, so finish it on the same phone you started it on.

Sending an incomplete visit

You can submit having answered only some of the standards — a walk gets interrupted. The app will tell you how many are unanswered and ask you to confirm, and the visit is then marked Partial wherever the score appears.

That marking matters. The score only covers the standards that were answered, so three of eight all passed reads as 100%. The label is what stops that being mistaken for a clean full visit.

After the visit

A visit is not the end of anything. The work is what happens next.

What the community receives

When a visit is submitted, the community and the region's leadership are emailed what it found: the score, the standards that failed, the photos and any action items raised.

Reporting a fix — Executive Directors

- 1 Open Action Items, or click the line in "Needs you".
- 2 Find the standard and press Comment on this.
- 3 Say what was done, and attach a photo of it.

Your regional is emailed straight away. You cannot close the item yourself, and that is deliberate — your comment is the report, their confirmation is the sign-off.

Confirming a fix — regionals

- 1 The item appears under "Fixes waiting on your confirmation".
- 2 Read what was done and look at the photo.
- 3 If you are satisfied, press Mark as addressed.
- 4 If not, comment back. The community is emailed and it returns to them.

Marking it addressed is what lifts the community's current score. The visit's own score does not change — the record of that day stays exactly as it was.

History

Open any community for its full history: every past visit, and a track record for each standard. Anything marked recurring has failed three times or more, which is usually worth more attention than a one-off.

A small chart shows whether the community is improving across recent visits. It uses the visit score each time, not the current one, so fixes made afterwards cannot flatter the line.

Move-Ins

Every new resident gets a checklist, in four phases:

- Pre Move-In — red carpet and preparation.
- Move-In Day — the tour-in.
- Welcome Home.
- Follow-Up — day 5, and one to two weeks in.

Some items are required for compliance and can carry an attachment. A move-in cannot be marked complete while a required item is still open — the app will say which ones.

A reminder is emailed three days before each move-in date. Anything past its date with required items still open is reported in the daily summary until it is dealt with.

Each move-in can be printed as a binder page, and the whole list exports to Excel or CSV.

For administrators

People

Everyone with access lives in one list. Adding someone creates their login and emails it to them automatically. From here you can change roles, reset passwords, remove access, and grant administrator privileges to a Corporate member.

Each row shows sign-in activity: a green marker while someone is using the app, when they last signed in, or Never signed in — which is the one to act on. An account nobody has opened is not adoption.

Standards

This is where the questions come from. Each standard carries its pass criteria, the communities it applies to, and which reviews it belongs to.

A standard with no review ticked belongs to every review. That is the rule the visit form applies, so it is worth knowing before you start ticking boxes.

If a review is left with no standards, a warning appears at the top of this page, and that review cannot be picked when starting a visit. Emptying one is an ordinary-looking edit and the effect would otherwise only surface to a regional already standing in a community.

When you add a community in Regions, it becomes available here immediately — but it is not attached to any standard until you tick it.

Settings

- Who receives which visit emails, by region or by inspector.
- Clinical, Operations and Sales routing addresses.
- Visit target — how many days a community may go between visits before it is flagged. Thirty by default. Nothing is blocked by it; it decides what counts as falling behind.
- Who receives what — every address the app sends to, flagging anyone missing an email address.

The daily summary

Administrators receive one email a day covering who signed in, visits submitted, what communities reported, what is waiting on a regional, password activity, and errors people hit.

It also reports the backup, but only when something is wrong — if no backup has succeeded for more than a day and a half. A green tick every morning becomes furniture within a week and stops being read.

When something goes wrong

What you see	What it means
"No questions available for this survey type"	No standards are set up for that review and community. An administrator fixes it under Standards; it is not a fault with your device.
A review is greyed out when starting a visit	It has no standards behind it. Pick another, and tell an administrator.
Emails are not arriving	Check Junk or Spam and mark them safe. If a person has no email address on file, Settings will show it under "Who receives what".
Your unfinished visit is missing	Drafts stay on the device that made them, for seven days. Use the same phone, and check you picked the same community.
A score looks wrong	Check whether the visit is marked Partial. The score only covers the standards that were answered.

If none of that fits, send a screenshot of what you are seeing before you leave the community. It is far easier to sort out while you are still on site.
